

DEPUTY UNDER SECRETARY CHARLES BOHLEN

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Deputy Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs 1968

Primary Responsibilities

- Russian affairs
- Liaison with Pentagon, CIA, and AEC
- Dealing with Nitze, Clifford, etc.
- Relations with France
- Relations with European military commands
- Political-military affairs
- President Johnson in inter-departmental problems

State Department's Role

- State as "whipping boy"
- Historic attitude towards foreign affairs
- Foreign Service growth
- Foreign Service and Civil Service
- Wristonization
- State and White House relationship
- Growth of NSC
- Secretary of State Dean Rusk

McCarthy Era

- "Communists in government" legacy
- China and communism
- "Yalta papers" problem
- Soviets and McCarthyism

Summitry

- Participation
- Dictatorships versus democracies in summitry

Relations with President Johnson

- Johnson as Majority Leader in Congress
- Johnson's Berlin visit
- Johnson's vitality
- Johnson and De Gaulle
- De Gaulle's view of France's world role
- President Kennedy's understanding of De Gaulle
- Multilateral force issue (MLF)
- NATO without France
- Johnson and the Russians

Yalta and Eastern Europe

- Zonal agreements

- Control Council of Germany

- Soviets in Eastern Europe

- Finland and Soviets

- Soviet aggressions after WWII

Johnson as Foreign Policy Leader

- Inherited Vietnam from Kennedy

- U.S. public view of U.S. involvement

- Johnson's desire for secrecy

- U.S. rise to dominant role