

HANS COHRSEN

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Biosketch: Early Years in Germany: Emigration to U.S. 1926

Survival in U.S.: Onset of Depression

Cohrsen Decides to Become an Economist:

Long Association with Yale University Professor Irving Fisher

1931 Hitler's Accession to Power Persuaded Cohrsen to Obtain American Citizenship

1942: Joins Wartime Information Services:

Service in North Africa, Italy, and Finally (1945) Austria

The Building of Austrian Radio - Ultimately Known as the Red-White Network, in Salzburg

Controversy Over Program Written by Young U.S. Citizens of Austrian Birth Assaulting the Catholic Church

An Early Post-War Move to Eliminate Red White Red Network and Retain Only the Radio in Vienna - Which was Russian Controlled - was Defeated

Russians Attempt to Create a Revolution in Austrian Russian Sector During First Year of Occupation Using Vienna Radio to Support their Scheme. Attempt Thwarted

Cohrsen Ultimately has Disagreement with American Headquarters in Vienna Because he Believed VOA Programs to Austria were too Hardline-Propagandistic and U.S. Headquarters was Pushing Similar Programs over Red-White Red. He is Dismissed

Cohrsen Again in Difficult at Radio in Frankfurt for One of His Broadcast Commentaries

1949: U.S. Returns Control of German Radio to Germans: Cohrsen Goes to Radio Free Europe but Soon is Released

Cohrsen Returns to U.S. to Found New Non-Governmental Organization and Inaugurates a Voice in Europe Operation

But Later Developments Prevent Realization

Concluding Comments on Austrian Radio Period