

AMBASSADOR/ADMIRAL WILLIAM J. CROWE, JR.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Retirement as Chief of Joint Chiefs of Staff	1973
Campaign for (President) Bill Clinton	1993
Briefing Clinton on military affairs
Criticism of Clinton's Vietnam War stance
Social divisions as campaign issues
Military in politics
Clinton's staff
Military view of Clinton
Homosexuals in military issue
Reactions to Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Kennedy
Problem Issues in Clinton Administration (Somalia)
Failure of intelligence
Costs of intervention
Tactical errors
UN control of U.S. troops
Political misreading
Neutrality lacking
U.S. desire to be liked
Chairman, Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board	1993-1994
Cold War focus
Intelligence community overstatement
Demise of Soviet Union not predicted
Intelligence community must predict and warn
Pre-World War II code-breaking efforts
No continuing mission
United Kingdom - Ambassador	1994-1997
Choices
Senator McCain objects to appointment
Conflict of interest problems
Irish problem
White House domination of Irish problem
IRA and Sinn Finn
Terrorism issue
Ambassador to Ireland, Jean Kennedy Smith
Gerry Adams' fund-raising
U.S. tilt toward Irish
Clinton visit to Northern Ireland

British policy to “keep talking”
George Mitchell
Prime Minister John Major
Prime Minister Tony Blair
Northern Ireland Agreement
Senator Kennedy’s activities
Ambassador Smith’s ambassadorship
John Major-Clinton relationship
Yugoslavia issue
Relations with State and other departments
British loss of power to Europe
British economy
British attitude towards Europe
European currency issue
U.S.-British ties
London as power center
Contacts with UK government
Blair changes Labor Party
Social burden
Annenberg as ambassador
Views on the Foreign Service
Embassy staff
British military establishment