

AMBASSADOR ELBRIDGE DURBROW

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Background - Pre-Saigon experience with Communists
Moscow	1934-1938
Deputy Chief of Mission - 1946-1948
State Department - East European Division - WWII
Italy and Poland - pre-WWII
Communist Party and Soviet techniques
Subversion and terrorism
Saigon, Vietnam	1957-1961
View of Diem
Diem defeats Binh Xuyen
U.S. AID programs
Wolf Ladejinsky's land reform
Relocation program
Montagnards vs. Vietnamese
U.S. military program
Road-building
Embassy-MAAG friction
General Williams
Diem and Williams' rapport
Maxwell Taylor
Unconventional warfare
Civil Guard (Vietnamese)
Viet Cong attack Bien Hoa Air Base
Soviet assistance and Ho Chi Minh Trail
Hanoi's tactics against Diem
Sihanouk and Viet Minh intrusions
CIA activities
US advisory buildup
Counter-insurgency (U.S.)
International Control Commission (ICC)
Views on Diem
Can Lao Party
U.S. advice to Diem
Halberstam's The Best and the Brightest
Pentagon Papers
Anti-Diem coup
Diem's farewell to Durbrow
Diem-USOM relations
Saigon rumor factory
Nhus

Civil Guard training
Briefing successor Nolting

Paris, France - The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) 1961 - 1965(?)

Diem overthrown
Democracy problems
Vietnam 1966 elections
Religion and ethnic South Vietnamese
Buddhist “troubles”
Gulf of Tonkin (comments)
Graduated response
My Lais
William Calley
Views on U.S. in Vietnam
Prosecuting the war
Civilian vulnerability
Viet Cong and terrorism
Wars of “National liberation”