

PHYLLIS FREEMAN

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Mrs. Freeman accompanied her husband, Ambassador Fulton Freeman, on his assignments in Washington, D.C. and abroad.

Background

- Born in Massachusetts
- Saint Lawrence University
- Married Fulton Freeman in 1938
- Assistant to Andover professor William Starr Meyers
- Husband's background
- Real estate

General comments

- Life after the Foreign Service
- Influence of personality of Chief Officer and wife on staff
- Importance of time for children
- Importance of freedom of choice for wives at posts
- Learning how to cook
- Birth of children
- General health
- McCarthy
- Coping with isolation
- Holidays abroad

Mexico City, DF, Mexico	1939-1940
Birth of first child
Recreation
Demonstrations

Peking (Peiping), China	1940-1942
Finances
Cantonese language
Japanese control
Embassy move to Nanking, then Chungking
Environment
Treatment by Japanese
Traveling with an infant
Jane Johnson
Housing
Living environment
Evacuation
Separation

University of California	1942-1943
Chunking, China	1943-1945
Peking (Peiping), China Methodist Mission Hospital Communist threat	1945-1948
Washington, DC	1948-1951
Rome, Italy The European group Ambassador James Dunn Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker Ambassador Clare Booth Luce Mr. Luce Mrs. Luce's "poisoning" Environment Schooling American Women's Club of Rome Learning Italian Demonstrations	1951-1955
Norfolk, Virginia	1955-1958
Brussels, Belgium, 1958-1961 Ambassador William A. M. Burden
Bogotá, Colombia Women's Volunteers of Colombia Nursery School of Colombia Local outreach Learning Spanish Recreation Security	1961-1964
Mexico City, DF, Mexico Finding a cook Entertaining Cuban crisis	1964-1969