

DAVID JICKLING

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Overview of career in foreign assistance
Early years and education
Joined ICA with the International Training Program	1958
USAID/Guatemala in public administration	1961
USAID/Washington to the Development Administration Office	1968
USAID/Bolivia as head of public administration and education	1971
USAID Development Studies Program in Washington	1976
USAID/Nicaragua	1977
Retired to teaching international development in Michigan	1978
Assignments in development administration and local government in Ecuador	1983
Special assignments in development administration
Concluding observations

KEY WORDS

access roads
agriculture
Alliance for Progress
bi-lingual education
Bolivia
Brazil
Brazilian Institute of Municipal Administration (IBAM)
Central Computer Center (CENACO)
Chile
civil service
cocaine
Colombia
communications seminar

communists
community development
corruption
Cuba
customs house
democratically elected governments
Development Administration
Development Studies Program (DSP)
Ecuador
education of women
education
El Salvador
Equatorial Guinea
European Recovery Program
family planning
Fundo de Inversion Social
Ghana
Guatemala
Haiti
Honduras
immigration
Indian population
infrastructure
Institute of Public Administration
Institute of Inter-American Affairs (IIAA)
Inter-American highway Internal Revenue Service (IRS)
international training program
International Cooperation Administration (ICA)
Iran
jumping up and down theory
local government decentralization
local leaders
Local Service for Urban Development (CENDUSENACO)
malaria control
management education
Managua reconstruction
mapping
merit systems
migration
municipal association
Nicaragua
Nigeria
Pakistan
Panama Canal
Paraguay

Peace Corps
personnel systems
population pressures
potable water
preventive medicine
public health nursing
public sector management
public safety program
rural education
Sandinistas
servicios
small farmers
small enterprise
Somoza
Tanzania
tax administration
tax offices
tax administration
tourism
training spouses