

AMBASSADOR LANGHORNE A. MOTLEY

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Background

- Born in Brazil
- U.S. Air Force
- Alaskan politics
- Environmental issues
- Senatorial race in Alaska, 1980

Campaign to become ambassador to Brazil

- Role of State Department
- Senator Murkowski
- White House
- Change from Carter to Reagan administrations re Latin American affairs
- Role of Jesse Helms

Ambassador to Brazil

1982-1983

- Preparation and briefing
- Role of desk officers
- Tom Enders
- Relations with Brazil at time of arrival
- Importance of contacts in Washington for ambassadors
- Embassy staff, establishing expectations
- Visit of Vice President Bush
- Importance of presidential visits
- Utility of Congressional visits
- Nuclear issue
- Debt crisis in Brazil
- Falklands war
- Latin American ambassadors association
- Contacts with opposition
- Relations with consular posts
- Role of military attaches
- Dealing with Brazilian government
- President Figuerado
- Ministry of Foreign Affairs
- President Reagan and Latin America

Assistant Secretary for Latin American Affairs

1983-1985

- Problems of Assistant Secretary Enders
- Appointment to ARA
- Reassuring ARA staff
- Dealing with Sandinistas and GOP right wing

Setting goals
301 cases regarding informatics
Re-democratization movement in Latin America
Public relations
Regional and functional bureaus in Department
Office of Political-Military Affairs
Role of U.S. military in Latin America
Dealing with American ambassadors
Chile and Pinochet
Colombia and drugs
Drug Enforcement Agency
Grenada operation
Relations with Mexico
Foreign Ministry in hands of left
Economic position
Ambassador Gavin
ARA staff
Central American problems
Limitations
Sandinistas and Contras
Relations with Department of Defense
Reluctance to use force
CIA
Mining of Nicaraguan harbor
Congressional staffs
El Salvador
Vice President Bush's trip to El Salvador
Panama
Cuba
Ollie North
Elliot Abrams and Congress

Ambassadorial Seminar

Explaining ambassadors' authorizations
President's letter
Use of embassy officers
Terrorist threats
Fiscal responsibilities
Evaluation of Marine guards
Non-career vs career ambassadors