

AMBASSADOR IDAR RIMESTAD

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Background
Early life in North Dakota
University of North Dakota
Civil service
Director of personnel for the High commission
Transfer to Foreign Service
John McCloy
Washington	1956-1957
Dept. of State Personnel Division
Head of Washington region
Wriston program
Transfer from FSS-1 to FSO-3
“Club” orientation of personnel system
Assignment process
FSOs in personnel
Problems of personnel assignments
Moscow	1957-1960
Nature of administration
Private use of embassy vehicles
Living conditions
KGB “bugging” of Embassy
American visitors
Congressman Rooney
Washington	1960-1964
Executive director of ACDA
Kennedy’s involvement
Paris	1964-1967
Counselor for administration
Problems with large size of Embassy
Administration of embassy
Mcbride as DCM
Recurring administrative problems
Conclusions on Paris experience
State Dept. support of other government agencies
Washington	1967-1969
Deputy Undersecretary for Administration

- Origins of appointment
- 1966 Johnson visit to New Zealand
- Presidential support for appointment
- Relationship with President Johnson
- Johnson's concern with State personnel
- Personnel conflicts between Secretary and President
- Contact with secretary
- Larry Eagleburger
- Relationship with Congress
- Budget process
- Importance of personal relationships with Members of Congress
- Congressional views of Foreign Service in the late 1960s
- Congressman Rooney
- Administration problems at State
- Problems of time limitations
- Assistant secretary for administration position
- Central vs. regional control
- Generalist vs. regionalist debate
- Management in the Foreign Service
- Solutions to personnel problems
- Major concerns
- Views of consulates general and consulates
- Relationships with other agencies
- Transition from Johnson to Nixon

Geneva

1969-1973

- US representatives to International Organizations
- Main responsibilities
- Political and economic concerns
- US role in international organizations
- Retirement