

LENORA “LE” WOOD ROWELL

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Beginning in the FS

- Childhood and education in Washington, DC
- Rowell children’s education and childhood experiences contrasted
- Decision to enter Foreign Service
- Career advantages for wives in the FS
- Examples of professional skills and training considered especially valuable to FS wives
- OBS head Jean German requested first cross-cultural paper on Portugal, written by LR
- Lack of language and other training for wives in ‘50’s

Recife and Curitiba, Brazil, and Tegucigalpa, Honduras

- Arrival by boat in Recife
- Post life
- Teaching English at YWCA leads to valuable contacts
- Undesirable compartmentalization of post sections and agencies
- Evacuation of Curitiba 1961
- Anti-American feeling in Honduras in late ’60’s
- Security requirements and their effect on Rowell children

La Paz, Bolivia

1985-1988

- Ambassadorial appointment to Bolivia marred by friends’ concerns
- Very tight security
- Importance of Embassy orientations
- Solicitude for U.S. embassy staff
- Activities in Bolivia
- Value to area
- Saving old paintings and church near La Paz
- Quilt exhibit at U.S. Embassy

Lisbon, Portugal

1988-1990

- Bohlen award
- Activities in Lisbon contributing to Bohlen award nomination
- Value of organization skills
- Diplomatic/business community ties
- Skills characteristic of American women
- 1972 Directive
- “Representation”
- Courses on representation
- Wife’s contribution still can affect husband’s career and U.S. image abroad
- Proposal to pay wives
- Housekeeping arrangements

Life in the FS

- Children’s recollection of FS life
- Difficulties of home leave and U.S. postings
- Importance and value of training provided to wives by Overseas Briefing Center
- Role models

Financial aspects of the FS

Value of social skills in the FS

Security

FS now looked on more as one of succession of jobs rather than an extended career

Changes reflect broader societal changes

U.S. FS suffers from poor public relations

Embassy staff should be shown appreciation for their efforts

Few possibilities for wives' employment when overseas

Family health and other problems complicate life overseas

Department's medical officers