

JOHN H. STUTESMAN

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Background

Born and raised in Washington, DC
Princeton University
U.S. Army, WWII
Entered Foreign Service - 1946

Shanghai, China - consular officer 1946-1949
Ousted by communists

Teheran, Iran - consular/political officer 1946-1952

- Ambassador Wiley
- Embassy staffing
- Iranian character
- Mussadiq
- The Shah
- Iran as buffer
- Environment
- U.S. presence
- Ambassador Grady and Mussadiq
- Iranian contacts
- General Razmara assassination
- Gerald Dooher
- British presence and influence
- Role of petroleum
- AIOC (Anglo-Iranian Oil Company) nationalization
- Max Thornburg
- Iran-British negotiations
- Harriman mission
- Alton Jones
- American Oil Company's mistrust of Iranian oil
- Ambassador Loy Henderson
- CIA
- Henderson and Mussadiq relationship
- Mussadiq "dumped" - 1953
- U.S. involvement in overthrow
- Zahadi
- Tudeh party influence

State Department - Iranian Affairs - officer in charge 1949-1952

- Relations with other offices and agencies
- Duties and operations

Relations with U.S. oil companies
Ahmad Qavam
BEDAMN program
CIA
"Beedle" Smith
U.S. hostility to Mussadiq
The Dulleses
Global considerations
President Eisenhower's administration
Stutesman's "What if?" paper
Requests for U.S. aid
Kermit Roosevelt and Mussadiq
Shah flees to Rome
GOI after Mussadiq
Vice President Nixon visits Shah
U.S. attitude towards Iran
Herbert Hoover, Jr.
British government and AOIC
Dutch and French
OCB meetings
Hoover and Henderson negotiating philosophy
Ali Amini negotiations
Shah's U.S. visit
CIA and SAVAK
Tudeh presence
The Zahedis
Dulles and Alliances
Baghdad Pact
U.S. influence in reforms
Shah's strength and value to Iran

Appendix