

MORRIS WEISZ

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Background

Education at City College, NY
Clerk, Census Bureau

National Labor Relations Board

1937-1948

Dave Saposs
Role, organization, major players of WPB
Duties at Radio and Radar Division
After war, why many moved into international work
Abolition of Economic Research Division
Saposs as head of Labor Stats
 Labor Advisory Committee
Organization of BLS under Clague
Saposs as general advisor, director of Labor Office
Marshall Plan European Headquarters, Paris

Bureau of Labor Statistics

1948-1952

Recommendation from Saposs to replace him at BLS
Duties as Labor Advisory Committee Head
Initial interest in international labor
Lectures on domestic labor issues
Philip Kaiser
Labor attaché conference, Havana, Cuba
Stay in Paris
 Writing speech for Kissinger
 Love for city
 Talk with Saposs

General Advisor to Director of Labor Office, Paris

1952-1957

Invitation to Saposs Paris Job
Call from Kaiser to go to Geneva
Joe Heath as Labor Division Director
View of productivity division
Organization of Marshall Plan teams at missions
Labor unions affiliations
Conflicts on how to divide benefits from productivity
Increases
View from management side
Communist unions
CIO
Rivalries

Victor Reuther, CIO rep.
Irving Brown, AFL rep.
Role of both
Labor attaches at American Embassies
Job at Paris office

Root of conflict between AFL and CIO

Background of the Reuther family
Father
Three brothers in auto industry
Jay Lovestone
Removal from General Secretary, Communist Party US
Head of CPO
Secretary of Free Trade Union Committee
Efforts against Stalinists
Irving Brown as real power behind Detroit's anti-Communist cause
Struggle for union control
Accusation of Reuther caucus not being anti-communist
Break-up of UAW-CIO; formation of UAQ-AFL
View of role of labor officer

Marshall Plan Office, Paris

1952-1957

Election of Eisenhower as President
Temporary head of labor division
Taylor as head of labor staff
Working relationship with Taylor
Taylor's entry into Foreign Service
Twofold problem
During war, working with Communist labor unions
 CIO view
 AFL view
Coal of WFTU
Composition of WFTU
CIO president Philip Murray
Reason for CIO split
Original Marshall Plan proposal
Split-up of WFTU
Disillusionment by Masaryk and Soviets
Brief political history of Soviet Union
Criticism of Irving Brown
View of how to write about this period
Conversation with Reuther about Murray's donation
Benefits from AFL-CIO competition
Competition between labor attaches and aid mission chiefs
Austria
 Person in charge of Marshall Plan Office

Irwin Tobin, labor attaché
May Day parade
Austrian view of people in aid office
Many former labor personnel becoming leaders in their countries
Financing training
Object of Marshall Plan: free flow of 3 M's
How requests for aid were examined
Stassen's cut of personnel
Discharge of David Christian, manpower expert
Talk with Stassen
Wish to not be division head; voluntary downgrade

Conclusion

Possibility of becoming labor attaché to Brussels
Offer made by Oliver Peterson, departing attaché and friend
Opposition from Jay Lovestone
Refusal of offer to go to Austria
Postscript on the loyalty program