

AMBASSADOR ROBERT F. WOODWARD

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Background
Impact of Foreign Service
Childhood
Foreign Service
Salary during depression
Buenos Aires
Language Training
Bogotá, Columbia	1936 - 1937
Recruiting from humble backgrounds
Origin of drafting skills
DCM posts
National War College
Ambassador to Costa Rica	1954-1958
Appointment
Preparation for position: Ellis Briggs, Larry Duggan, Spain
Costa Rican highway project
CIA's awareness of impending invasion
Nicaraguan invasion of Costa Rica
Airplane attack and OAS's requirement for planes
Retaliatory air raid on Nicaragua
CIA's attitude toward Costa Rica's Figueres government
Embassy staff
Ambassador to Uruguay	1958-1961
Problems with wool trade
Uruguay's seizure of U.S. packing plants
Castroism and anti-U.S. sentiments
U.S. policy toward Uruguay
Cross ties case
Meeting representational costs
Finding wholesale scotch supplies
President Eisenhower's visit
Role of CIA
Ambassador to Chile	1961
Bay of Pigs
Alliance for Progress
Visit from Ellis Briggs and Adlai Stevenson
Dean Rusk's offer of Assistant Secretary for Latin American Affairs

Assistant Secretary for Latin American Affairs	1961-1962
Return to Washington
Nature of U.S. ambassadors to Latin America
Alliance for Progress meeting
First of December Massacre
Hickenlooper Amendment: withholding aid from Haiti
Colombian resolution and the break the Castro
Madrid, Spain	1962-1965
U.S. military bases in Spain
Dealing with Spanish government
CIA in Spain
Polio inoculations and U.S. – Spanish relations
Advisor to Panama Canal Treaty	1965-1967
Draft treaties
Turning down Ambassadorship to Uruguay
Retirement
Conclusion
Accomplishment: Inter – American highway
Economic conditions in Soviet Union
Cuba and Castro
Frustration: CIA
Public speaking skills
Spanish proficiency
Family in the Foreign Service
Coup against President Arbenz in Guatemala	1954